In case of failure in this part, a complementary test (version) will have to be presented at the September session. Attendance at the practical sessions is required: in the event of unjustified absence from more than 3 sessions or failure to present for the tests and evaluated versions, the teacher may, in accordance with article 72 of the RGEE, propose to the jury that it oppose the registration of a student in the June or September session. - Written test of theoretical knowledge and practical skills (including theme). This test will be worth two fifths of the final mark (8/20). It will take place in the June or September exams session. In case of failure, the remedial test will be held at the September session under the same conditions. - Oral test to check mastery of cursive reading. This test will be worth two fifths of the final mark (8/20). It is spread over the two sessions of January (partial examination, 1/5 of the final mark) and June (1/5 of the final mark). In case of failure to the cursive test in January and/or June, the remedial test will be held at the September session in all cases and under the same conditions.
Teaching methods	Alternating interactive class sessions and practical work.
Content	In-depth study of classical Latin grammar with a linguistic approach. In the Latin III A course, will be covered the topic of the subordinate clauses (in an argument or satellite position as well as relative clauses).
