Teacher(s)	van der Mensbrugge François ;
Language :	English
Place of the course	Bruxelles Saint-Louis
Learning outcomes	At the end of this learning unit, the student is able to : The course is designed to offer an initiation to the basic features and diversity of the English-speaking world (primarily the UK and the United States), as well as the fundamental problems it faces (power, identity, sphere of influence, among others).
Evaluation methods	The evaluation is carried out by means of a written exam made up of five or six questions. The exam criteria include an evaluation of the students' understanding of the subjects covered during the course, the structure of their reasoning, their analytical and summarizing skills as well as their ability to establish relations between various parts of the subject matter. The examination will also take account of students' level of English as well as the clarity of the presentation. The exam usually lasts 90 minutes. No documents whatsoever are allowed at the exam.
Teaching methods	The course is primarily based on theoretical classes given to the entire group ("lectures") with possible discussions on texts, which students are invited to read and analyze in advance. Discussions should further students' understanding of the theoretical topics covered during the lectures. They will also serve to develop students' ability to take part in discussions in order to attain a certain level of fluency. In addition to the course outline, a summary of the course and a PowerPoint presentation accompany the lectures. Needless to say, course material (in-house or student-made) and PowerPoint presentations are not all-encompassing for the exam. Academic success largely depends on sound concentration during the lectures accompanied by a follow-up of study, insight and focus at home. The course is given at the Saint-Louis-Brussels site, during the first term, on Fridays, from 10:45 to 12:45, Room 1 (30 hours). As mentioned above, the course is primarily given in the form of classes given to the entire group ("lectures"). This involves a fairly large setting and a degree of self-discipline. No mid-term exam is organized, nor do students take any quizzes. The lectures are given once a week, lasting two hours, with one short break. Please consult the bulletin boards for the venue and exact hours.
Content	The course focusses on seven main themes which, together, present a wide range of the English-speaking world's cultural aspects. Following a lengthy introduction, designed to define the very notion of "culture", the course is built upon the following themes: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. British History and Politics</li> <li>2. Shakespeare</li> <li>3. The Special Relationship Between Great Britain and the United States</li> <li>4. U.S. History and Politics</li> <li>5. Race Relations in the United States</li> <li>6. Economics and Bigness in U.S. Culture</li> <li>7. Imperialism</li> </ol>
