It underlines the heterogeneity of the various cultural fields of the continent and their specific interactions with European and North American literatures, and also with the intellectual heritage before the 20th century ("crónicas de Indias" of the 16th and 17th centuries; essays of the 19th century).

Evaluation methods	A final written exam accounts for 70% of the final grade. The remaining 30% is allocated to continuous assessment and the final oral examination.
Teaching methods	The course will combine presentations of authors, currents and works considered with literary analysis of short stories.
Content	The aim of the course is to give students an overview of Hispano-American narrative, encompassing both the internal processes and the historical factors conditioning literary production between the end of the nineteenth century and the beginning of the twenty-first. The proposed course is not exhaustive, but focuses on the most significant figures and works, placing them in the context of their production in order to articulate, from the reading itself, the main currents and problems of contemporary literary historiography in Latin America. The thematic common thread concerns the problem of the representation of social and environmental reality and the limits of traditional realism. Hence the interest in fantastic and magic-realist poetics.
