Main themes	This course provides an introduction to the legal system of the European Union combining theoretical approaches and case studies. It inter alia covers the following topics: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Nature of the EU system</li> <li>• Policy- and decision-making procedures (EU treaties, international agreements, legislative acts, implementing and delegated acts, etc.)</li> <li>• Typology of EU acts (treaties, regulations, directives, decisions, etc.)</li> <li>• Sources of EU law (OJ publications, ECJ judgments, etc.) and hierarchy</li> <li>• Fundamental rights, citizenship and general principles of EU law</li> <li>• Enforcement of EU law in front of national courts (primacy and direct effect; actions for damages; preliminary references) and in front of EU courts (actions for annulment, for failure to act, infringement proceedings, actions for damages, etc.)</li> </ul> In this course, students study the European Union as a political system. The course gives an overview of the EU's institutional architecture and its main actors. Attention is first paid to the composition, the internal functioning, the tasks, the main political dynamics and the areas of tension within each institution. Subsequently, the interactions between the institutions are studied, by focusing on the interinstitutional and interstate dynamics of EU policy-making. The course then discusses the input side of the EU's political system (elections, public opinion, interest groups and interest representation) as well as the output side (types of EU policies and policy instruments). Finally, the course familiarises students with the main political science theories on the emergence, development, design and nature of European integration. Particular attention is paid to contemporary issues, such as the politicization of the EU, Euroscepticism, and questions on democracy and legitimacy.
