Place of the course	Louvain-la-Neuve
Learning outcomes
Evaluation methods	Continuous assessment of participation in course activities (preparation of texts and attendance at and participation in group discussion sessions): 30% of final grade. Completion of a piece of work, alone or in pairs, to be submitted by the end of the semester (70% of the final mark). For the second session, the assessment mark for attendance at course activities is retained. The student completes individually any work that has not been passed.
Teaching methods	The course will alternate between oral presentations by recognised external speakers and lecturers, and work in a flipped classroom based on social science research (journalism studies) carried out by the students. There will also be Q&amp;A sessions and debates between students, lecturers and teachers.
Content	The course looks at the specific contextual features of journalistic practices relating to environmental issues (climate change, natural disasters, health crises, etc.). It deals with questions relating to writing, narratives, formats, journalistic genres and editorial strategies adapted to these issues.
Inline resources	Online resources will be specified throughout the semester on Moodle according to the direction taken by the course.
Bibliography	Une liste de lecture en ligne sera précisée au fil du semestre sur Moodle en fonction des orientations prises par le cours.
Other infos	All the relevant information on these procedures and on how the activities will be carried out (timetable, detailed instructions, assessment criteria, etc.) will be presented during the first session and will be available on Moodle. Some resources (e.g. bibliographical resources or explanatory videos) will be available in English.
