

4.00 credits

30.0 h

Q2

Language :	French
Place of the course	Louvain-la-Neuve
Learning outcomes
Evaluation methods	The evaluation will be based on students' participation to the course, group presentations, and an oral exam.
Teaching methods	The course will consist of lectures and guided oral presentations by groups of students, who are expected to read and summarize the findings of recent research papers covering various aspects of international migration.
Content	This seminar deals with the economic analysis of international migration. Throughout the semester, students will be exposed to recent research that combines theory and empirics to contribute to the most relevant contemporary debates on migration.
Inline resources	The course material (papers, etc.) will be made available on Moodle.
Faculty or entity in charge	ECON