Language :	French
Place of the course	Bruxelles Saint-Louis
Learning outcomes	At the end of this learning unit, the student is able to : This course aims at preparing the students for their upcoming master thesis through a personal piece of work that shows their capability to use, analyse and make a written synthesis of sources (published or unpublished).
Evaluation methods	The final written work will include, in addition to an in depth analysis and an exhaustive bibliography, a critical edition of sources appended to the work. The assessment also takes into account the oral presentation of the research results (mid-term).
Teaching methods	Common and directed definition of the subject; bibliographical research and state of the question; practical (and supervised) implementation of palaeography and diplomacy; introduction to the critical edition of manuscript sources; analysis of documents; communal sessions during which we will discuss the method, specific issues and results.
Content	Each student is requested to address a specific aspect of a shared theme relating to the history of the Modern Times, more specifically (but not exclusively) the history of the ancient Southern Netherlands of the sixteenth to eighteenth century. The theme and the sources on which the research is based vary from year to year, but always relate to the field of political, institutional and legal history.
Bibliography	La réalisation de la bibliographie, à partir d'amorces fournies par l'enseignant, fait partie intégrante du travail de l'étudiant. Il (elle) pourra être amené(e) à fréquenter la Bibliothèque royale Albert 1er. Les documents d'archives seront fournis sous forme de photographies numériques.  The finalisation of the bibliography, starting from a lead provided by the professor, is an integral part of the students' work. The students will be invited to conduct some research in the Albert I Royal Library. Archive documents will be provided in the form of digital photographs.
