Teaching methods	The course is delivered in person. It is taught in the form of a lecture, involving active student participation (analysis of case law and case studies).
Content	Administrative Authorizations (Environment) The administrative authorization regime in environmental matters (operating permits) constitutes one of the first regulations of activities likely to impact the environment or the neighborhood (see the RGPT regime). First, the course addresses the regulatory framework of administrative authorization regimes in environmental matters under EU law. It reviews the requirements of the environmental impact assessment regime already covered in a previous course and the requirements of the IED (formerly IPPC) and SEVESO directives. Next, the Belgian legal regimes are examined comparatively, taking into account their developments since the RGPT.
