Language :	Deutsch
Place of the course	Louvain-la-Neuve
Learning outcomes
Evaluation methods	Continuous assessment of course work (compulsory readings from week to week, participation in discussions, regular learning of thematic vocabulary; written practical exercises: 30%). Final assessment in the form of an on-site written examination (Klausur). Assessment and access to the final examination are conditional upon regular and active attendance at the course and the work produced.
Teaching methods	Introduction by the teacher, discussion of the readings and group close reading during the course. Compulsory readings prepared individually by the student at home. Language of instruction : German.
Content	The lecture offers an approach to the question of what characterises literary texts and how to read them. What is literature allowed to do that other types of texts are not? What distinguishes literature from all other types of text, how do we describe its specific features, its own style, its rules? Why is literature indispensable in social discourse, why does it expand and change perspectives? The introduction to the definition and description of literary texts offers a basic set of analytical tools for making academic statements about literary texts and recognising their particular style.
Inline resources	Online scripts and literary texts.
