Gender and development

5.00 credits	30.0 h	Q1

Teacher(s)	Mazzocchetti Jacinthe ;Piccoli Emmanuelle ;
Language :	French
Place of the course	Louvain-la-Neuve
Main themes	The course will present the contributions of decolonial feminisms and ecofeminisms to the critique of gender relations, productivism and colonialism. It will be based on texts, case studies and guest interventions. The course will allow students to understand the two currents and to take into account the analyzes of these currents in their (future) practices in the worlds of development or social action.
Learning outcomes	At the end of this learning unit, the student is able to : 1. Characterize decolonial feminisms and ecofeminisms 2. Critically analyze the main currents resulting from decolonial feminisms and ecofeminisms and their contributions to the critique of gender relations, productivism and colonialism 3. Debate scientific and critical texts related to decolonial feminisms and ecofeminisms 4. Present the issues relating to decolonial feminisms and ecofeminisms in video
Evaluation methods	The assessment will be divided between: completing worksheets relating to the first two parts of the course and a creative group project combining the themes, which will also be presented to part of the audience. You will answer questions about it from your colleagues and teachers. The use of AI is not permitted. In the event of a second exam, the teachers will decide on an appropriate examination procedure.
Teaching methods	The course is taught in a hybrid format, with online modules (on Moodle) and in-person sessions. The exact schedule will be provided on the first day of class and is available on Moodle.
Content	Following an introduction, the course will be divided into four parts: 1) An online (on Moodle) and face-to-face module on ecofeminism 2) An online (on Moodle) and face-to-face module on decolonial feminism 3) Cross-disciplinary presentations (lectures, workshops, etc.) on ecofeminism and decolonial feminism (in-person) 4) The conclusion (in-person), an artistic project and a presentation discussed collectively (in session)
Inline resources	See the course's Moodle page.
