Evaluation methods	Certification is made up of a continuous assessment component and a performance in the examination session. Absence (justified or not) from the examination or one of its parts will result in a final mark of absence (justified or not). Continuous assessment tasks may not be submitted (for the first time) after the deadline set by the teacher, except in the case of a medical certificate. The final exam mark is made up of 5 parts: • a language proficiency test (10%) a final exam in week 13 or during the January, June or August session, covering the 4 skills: • reading (15%) • listening (15%) • writing (15%) • speaking (15%) In the event of failure (mark below 50%) in at least 1 of the 5 parts of the examination, the mark for the weakest part will be applied to the whole examination: If the student fails the language section (mark below 50%): the student is given the opportunity to retake the test once only, before the final exam day, after receiving formative feedback following the first sitting. If a student fails one or more competencies in the final exam (mark below 50%): the student who sits the final exam in August has the option of sitting the failed competency(s) OR the entire test if he/she wishes to improve his/her mark. No continuous assessment tasks may be submitted during the August session.

Teaching methods	This course is based on cooperative learning and project-based approach. Students are involved into several everyday tasks and acquire a better knowledge of the language as they improve their communicative skills. Some sessions may be organized remotely, on Teams, depending on the educational objectives
Content	At the beginning of the course, students get familiar with the French pronunciation. Intonation, tone, stress, rhythm as well as the International Phonetic Alphabet are introduced and practiced in a ludic way. Students first improve their listening and speaking skills with the help of pictures and with online dialogues. The syllabus presents familiar situations (asking for information at university, about, describing accommodation, shopping, and other everyday life issues). The writing and reading skills are developed once students are familiar with French pronunciation. The course is interactive and cooperative. Besides the syllabus, students have access to on-line exercises on the Intranet (platform Moodle).
