Place of the course	Louvain-la-Neuve
Prerequisites	None
Main themes	The course provides an opportunity to put into practice the knowledge of different aspects of the Ancient Near Eastern civilizations.
Learning outcomes
Evaluation methods	The assessment combines (1) an evaluation by the supervisor and (2) the 10-page philological research paper according to the following breakdown: 25% for the evaluation and 75% for the philological research paper.
Teaching methods	Practical training under the supervision of an internship supervisor and writing of a scientific work under the supervision of the thesis promoter.
Content	The internship allows students to develop personal work skills in accordance with the current standards of the discipline and provides an initial immersion in a professional environment. The duration of the internship is set at three weeks. The location is left to the student's choice, but must be approved by the supervisor. For example, it can be carried out in a museum, an archaeological repository, on an excavation site, etc. Excursions are not permitted. In all cases, the internship must consist of work on textual sources or a set of objects requiring philological study. This work must also be combined with a contextualised study of the material supports of the inscriptions or texts studied. Translated with DeepL.com (free version)
