Learning outcomes
Evaluation methods	Students will prepare a thesis project document presenting a detailed thesis proposal, as well as the different stages that led to its development. The document will follow a template provided by the instructor. The assessment aims to evaluate students' achievement of the intended learning outcomes. Preparatory exercises and regular formative feedback on the progress of the thesis project will be provided throughout the academic year.
Teaching methods	• Presentation of the process and methodology for developing a master's thesis; • Disciplinary and methodological workshops; • Peer-to-peer discussion and feedback among students; • Individual supervision by the instructor.
Content	This course unit prepares students to develop a master's thesis project on a question relating to economic and social policy. Course series: • Course description for LOPES22021: Nathalie Grandjean (substitute instructor) • Course description for LOPES22022: Nabil Sheikh Hassan (course instructor) • Course description for LOPES22023: Eric Mangez (course instructor)
