Evaluation methods	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- oral exam including open questions and questions on the content of the syllabus</li> <li>- class participation will be taken into account</li> </ul>
Teaching methods	The course will operate on the principle of the inverted class on the basis of a syllabus for the sessions of knowledge acquisition.
Content	The course alternates a sequence of knowledge acquisition and a sequence of implementation of the knowledge gained from the study of cross-cutting issues. The sequence of acquisition of knowledge is organized into two chronological subsequences (1. of late medieval Christianity in the mid 17th century; 2. from the confessional age to revolutionary Europe). The sessions in this framework are thematic and related to the major issues that cross the history of Christianity and especially of the Catholic Church on each of these periods. The sequence of knowledge implementation examines both the religious dynamics at local level in Belgium and the dynamics at work on a more general scale (churches and globalization). In these sessions, the work is mainly based on documentary studies.
