LMOD2M5 - Introduction

Introduction

Introduction

The master's degree in teaching (section 5) is the educational qualification required for access to the teaching profession in upper secondary education. It is awarded on completion of a 60-credit course. This degree complements the 2nd cycle diploma obtained in the chosen subject. The subject focus of the second cycle and the subject focus of the Master's degree in teaching (section 5) determine the subjects that can be taught in upper secondary education.

The aim of the Master's in Teaching (section 5) is to provide students with initial training that will enable them to acquire the knowledge and skills that are essential for an effective start in the teaching profession and for positive career development.

Your profile

- You wish to teach (or are already teaching) your subject in the last three years of upper secondary education.
- You meet the entry requirements for this programme.

Your future job

Teacher in upper secondary education

Your programme

The programme is based on :

- a teaching method that alternates lectures, seminars in small groups, conferences and professional practice placements ;
- a programme approach that closely and complementarily combines theory and practice ;
- a strong emphasis on work placements in upper secondary education, with support for professional practice throughout the course ;
- students are given responsibility for acquiring the knowledge, skills and attitudes associated with the teaching profession.

LMOD2M5 - Teaching profile

Learning outcomes

UCLouvain and its partners in the higher education institutions associated with this programme aim to train teaching professionals who are well-educated, creative, autonomous, ready to work in a team and committed to a democratic project for the school and for society.

Teachers are called upon to play an essential role with their pupils, as set out in the Education Code of 3 May 2019 :

- to promote the self-confidence and personal development of all pupils ;
- to help all pupils acquire the knowledge and skills that will enable them to be lifelong learners and to play an active role in economic, social and cultural life ;
- prepare all pupils to be responsible citizens, capable of contributing to the development of a democratic, caring and pluralist society open to other cultures ;
- provide all pupils with equal opportunities for social emancipation.

Initial teacher training is based on the mastery of prior knowledge that students will have to mobilise and develop through various activities during their Master's degree :

- knowledge of the subject(s) to be taught ;
- clear and correct communication in the language of instruction, both orally and in writing ;
- a critical and independent relationship with reference knowledge (scientific and cultural) ;
- interpersonal skills appropriate to the job profile ;
- a rich general culture and an openness to the diversity of cultures which will enable future pupils to become aware of the world and its transformations ;
- a desire to contribute to the democratising role of schools.

On successful completion of this programme, each student is able to :

1. As an institutional, social and cultural player:

1.1. act as a social and cultural player within the school and society, including in their transformation, integrate diversity and develop citizenship practices for greater social cohesion;

1.2. understand the ethical issues and respect the ethical and regulatory frameworks of the profession from a democratic and responsible perspective;

1.3. analyse the organisational and institutional environment of the education system and act within it, in particular by interacting with colleagues, parents, management and other players in order to:

1.3.1. be part of the school's management process and take part in processes to improve the French Community's education system;

1.3.2. make the school a place where pupils learn, develop and train in a positive climate, and not a place of selection.

1.4. control his/her administrative situation and monitor his/her personal administrative file.

2. As a player in a collective learning organisation:

2.1. become involved in collaborative working within an educational team in order to increase professionalism and expertise by mobilising collective intelligence, particularly during consultations;

2.2. identify his/her individual training needs and participate in identifying the training needs of the teaching team;

2.3. contribute to the dissemination, within the educational team, of the knowledge acquired through continuous training or the skills developed through such training or through experience.

3. As an organiser and supervisor of learning in an evolving dynamic:

3.1. mastery of subject content, its epistemological foundations, its scientific and technological development, its didactics and teaching methodology;

3.2. master knowledge of learning processes and research into the various models and theories of teaching;

3.3. have a thorough command of written and spoken French in order to teach and communicate appropriately in the various contexts and disciplines related to the profession;

3.4. take account of and develop the linguistic dimensions of learning and teaching, paying attention to the language of schooling or language of learning and being aware of the socially and culturally unequal nature of familiarisation with it;

3.5. act as a teacher within the class and the school as a whole, in particular through:

3.5.1. devising and implementing a teaching and learning approach, including a variety of practices designed to boost pupils' motivation and self-confidence and to develop their creativity and their spirit of initiative and cooperation;

3.5.2. the design, choice and use of teaching materials, textbooks, school software and other teaching aids;

3.5.3. constructing and using observation and assessment aids, the latter being specifically designed to be comprehensive and formative, encouraging pupils to take responsibility for and participate in their learning;

3.5.4. designing and implementing differentiated teaching practices and personalised support for pupils, taking account of their prior learning, their learner profile and, where appropriate, their specific needs, and relying in particular on co-teaching or co-intervention;

3.5.5. setting up interdisciplinary learning activities;

3.6. master the integration of digital technologies into their teaching practices;

3.7. take account of media literacy, EVRAS and gender in a cross-curricular way;

3.8. create a supportive relational framework to facilitate communication with pupils, their environment, particularly their families, and with colleagues;

3.9. manage the class group in educational and teaching situations in a way that is stimulating, structuring and reassuring.

4. As a reflective practitioner:

4.1. read critically the results of scientific research in education and didactics and draw on them for their teaching activities, as well as drawing on various disciplines in the human sciences to analyse and act in professional situations;

- 4.2. carry out, individually and with his/her peers, critical and rigorous observation and analysis of his/her own practices and their impact on his/her pupils, in order to regulate his/her teaching and develop the strategies and conditions for its implementation with a view to effectiveness and equity;
- 4.3. gradually build up their professional identity, in particular by using personal professional development tools such as the portfolio.
5. Understand, explain and illustrate the links between theories, recent research findings on learning and different methods/approaches in language teaching.
6. Plan and design lesson sequences in line with official reference materials and programs.
7. Encourage oral and written interaction in the target language through a variety of activities.
8. Assess students' language skills using formative and certificative tools.
9. Use a linguistic repertoire adapted to the needs of different classroom situations (interaction management, correction, explanations) and pedagogical contexts, at C1 level.
10. Develop a reflective analysis of one's own productions and teaching practices in order to strengthen one's skills and adopt the role of teacher-researcher (lifelong learning).

Programme structure

The 'master's in teaching (section 5)' degree course is organised with reference to the decree of 7 February 2019, amended by the decree of 2 December 2021 on initial teacher training in the Wallonia-Brussels Federation and the decree of 17 December 2003 organising the neutrality inherent in subsidised official education and laying down various measures relating to education.

The Master's programme in teaching (section 5), totalling 60 credits, is organised as a joint degree between the University and the Hautes Ecoles. 30 credits are taken by the University and 30 credits by the Hautes Ecoles. It is organised around several training categories:

- didactics and pedagogy
- human and social sciences
- internships
- research and integration.

Teaching method

In collaboration with its partners at the Hautes Ecoles, UCLouvain offers a dynamic program designed to train modern language teachers who are committed, competent and open to the world.

The training program integrates various types of courses (theory courses, seminars in small groups (intra- or interdisciplinary) as well as progressive immersion in the profession through a variety of internships: observation of teaching practices in the classroom, immersion for a few days in a school, active teaching practices in different levels and streams.

In the field of modern languages, special attention is paid to the link between language and culture, linguistic diversity, and innovative methods for developing students' language and intercultural skills.

Throughout the course, students are actively involved in their own learning: they build up their knowledge through experience, reflection and exchange. Internships, seminars and assignments (both individual and group) are designed to foster autonomy, critical thinking and collaboration, as well as lifelong learning.

Evaluation

The evaluation methods comply with the Academic regulations and procedures. More detailed explanation of the modalities specific to each learning unit are available on their description sheets under the heading "Learning outcomes evaluation method".

Assessment is carried out using a combination of formative and certificative methods, including practical work in a school context, oral presentations, written reports and oral or written examinations. This variety of assessment methods makes it possible to evaluate the development and final mastery of skills throughout the course.
